Governor Roosevelt, when President, intends to pursue the will-o'-the-wisp of disarmament. In his debt correspondence with President Hoover, he stated that the latter's policy on this subject is "clear and satisfactory", and he added that "success in a practical program of limitation, abolishing certain instruments of warfare and decreasing the offensive or attack power of all nations" will have a salutary influence on debt and economic discussions. If the paucity of results in the past are any indication, the negotiations Mr. Roosevelt will inaugurate will be fruitless. But the effect on morale will be bad.

Colonel Lindbergh has appeared in the arena of opposition to President Hoover's governmental reorganization orders. He and his associates will urge Congress to disapprove the proposal to transfer the administrative duties, powers and functions of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics to the Bureau of Standards. Doubtless, the Colonel's opposition will be enough and the Committee will remain in its present status, where it should be. The Army and Navy cannot afford to lose the close coordination which now prevails.

Indeed, all the President's orders promise to have short shrift. Sentiment in the House is against disturbance of river and harbor control by the Corps of Engineers. This reflects the sentiment of the country, which wants such construction to be done honestly and cheaply as in the past. So far as the Naval Observatory and Hydrographic Office are concerned, the chances are they will remain under the Navy, with the addition of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. This is as it should be.

Now that the Marines are getting out of Nicaragua, I wonder how long it will be before they are back again. It is noted that the two political parties in that country have agreed to divide equally between them the high posts in the Guardia Nacional. How long will that division maintain? And with politics rampant how long will the effective force the Marines created be able to keep peace and order? It looks as though another good piece of work is about to go bluey.

Give a welcome to the Air Defense League, just chartered in Pennsylvania. The League is to be made up of civilians interested in the national air forces, and intends to keep before the public the "true state of our air forces as compared with those of other first class powers," and to provide Congress with reliable data "free from propaganda." The organization of this body should stimulate

of Navy Duties Grows

Opposition in Congress to the transfer of the Hydrographic Office and Naval Observatory to the Department of Commerce became evident this week, with chances of defeating the shift considered good. Developments were:

1. A House Naval Affairs subcommittee rendered a strong report against the shift after holding hearings in the matter. The subcommittee was instructed by the full committee to withhold their report, and secure testimony from the Bureau of the Budget and the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

2. Representative Carl Vinson, of Georgia, chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, presented a statement to the House Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments, which is considering all of the consolidation executive orders, opposing the transfer of the two naval agencies.

3. A growing belief in congressional circles that the Democratic House would nullify all of the consolidations, to allow the incoming administration to present a merger plan.

4. The Senate Committee on Naval Affairs appointed a special subcommittee to confer with the House subcommittee, and report back recommendations in the matter.

Army Discontinues Daily Reports

An important step in the reduction of paper work which will have far reaching effect has been the approval by the Chief of Staff of the discontinuance, effective Jan. 1, 1933, of daily reports of changes.

Between 500 and 1000 reports of changes in the status of commissioned officers and approximately the same number of reports of changes in the status of enlisted men are received daily in the Office of the Adjutant General. Copies of reports of changes are at present sent to Corps Area and Department Commanders, to commanding officers of posts, camps, and stations to which officers report for permanent or temporary duty and to division commanders, when required by them.

Each month a monthly roster is prepared and is forwarded to the War Department and to all headquarters which now receive daily reports of changes. The monthly rosters carry all data with (Continued on Next Page)

Propose General Cut
Instead of Pay Freeze

Proposal by the Navy Department that all officers of the Navy and Marine Corps be given an additional 3.9 per cent pay cut next year in lieu of continuation of the "pay freeze" has stirred up considerable divergence of views throughout the armed services.

Although the proposal, contained in a letter from Secretary of the Navy Adams to Senator Hiram Bingham, chairman of the Senate economy committee, is made applicable only to the Navy and Marine Corps, the possibility of Congress applying it to all of the services gives it potency in the eyes of the Army and other services under the joint pay act.

The War Department, as reported last week, declined to join in the Navy proposal, and those Army officers who look with disfavor on the idea, hold to the belief that Congress would not impose such a cut on their service. On the other hand, it is pointed out that the War Department gave as their reason for not joining with the Navy, that their own letter of opposition to the "pay freeze" had already been sent to Congress, and that they might acquiesce later in the Navy plan.

Naval officers, too, are divided on the proposal. Those who do not or will not suffer from the "pay freeze" feel that, the injustice done to their brother officers should not be remedied by doing another wrong to all officers, while on the other hand, those who do suffer from the pay increase ban, and in addition some of those who do not, declare that if the course suggested by the Secretary is the only way that the ban can be lifted it should be pushed.

Text of Navy Letter
The Navy's letter to Senator Bingham follows:

NAVY DEPARTMENT
WASHINGTON

My dear Senator Bingham:

Supplementing the information requested by the late Senator W. L. Jones, then Chairman of the Special Senate Economy Committee, dated October 1, 1932, requesting comments upon the so-called "Economy Act," 1932 which was furnished to the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, I desire in amplification of my remarks to submit the following comments upon the operation of Section 201 of that act. In a letter dated May 14, 1932, addressed, at his request, to the Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, U. S. Senate, I stated in connection with Section 201 of that act, which was then under consideration:—

"This section prevents automatic increase in compensation by reason of length of service or promotion. This provision has the very great objection that it is inequitable in its application. In the Navy it would affect less than one-third of the personnel, namely, those who would, during the course of that year, become entitled under the basic law to promotion; those who chanced to be in such a situation that during the year they would not become entitled to promotion (Continued on Next Page)

American Newspaper Editors Hit Japanese Naval Increase Proposals

The Japanese proposal for increase in treaty ratio to Great Britain and the United States and for division of the earth into four spheres of influence, in one of which—the Pacific—she would be supreme, have stirred newspaper editors of this country. Her attitude, while understood by some as wholly nationalistic, is universally condemned.

"The present scheme," states the Milwaukee Journal, "is but a thinly veiled program to give the Japanese a Monroe doctrine for the Orient."

"Japan is not in the same position to administer a Monroe doctrine for Asiatic people as is the United States for South American peoples. Her position is not dominant. An assumed overlordship would lead to continued strife. Nor has her course in China in recent years carried the assurance that she would be a wise and just administrator. The Lytton commission report charges her with having promoted disunion in China for her own benefit."

"What Japan's game is in this new move to increase her comparative naval strength it is impossible to know," the New York Mirror states. "Official Washington voices the opinion that it is simply intended to muddy the international waters while she gets a stronger foothold in Manchuria."

"That may be. Then, again, it may not be. One thing is sure. Ever since the war we have been wasting time in speculations, futile conferences and parleys. While we talked, our sea supremacy has disappeared. Our naval strength has been dwindling, while Japan was bringing hers to the highest state of efficiency. Moreover, we have been having a clear demonstration of how seriously Japan regards agreements."

"Today the United States is utterly incapable of attacking Japan in the latter's home waters," says the Rochester Times-Union. "Despite the fact that our battle fleet is more numerous it must be remembered that effective range for the use of capital ships in war is not more than 2,000 miles without bases for refueling and refitting. This limit is set by fuel endurance."

"In the Far East we have only one naval base and that far from sufficient for the needs of a large battle fleet. This is Cavite in Manila Bay. To base a battle fleet upon it in war against an enemy in their home waters would be hazardous in the extreme. Our only effective base in the direction of Japan is Hawaii, nearly 5,000 miles east of the Philippines and 3,400 miles from the Japanese coast. Consequently it is ridiculous for the Japanese to demand increase in their naval power for reasons of defense."

"To concede what Japan asks would be virtually to concede parity of naval strength to a nation which has done more than any other in the last 18 months to convince the world that treaties mean little to her when contrasted with national advantage."

"The Japanese proposals, both because of the increased Japanese ratio and because they include the proportional reduction of all fleets, would leave Japan in a still more impregnable military position in the Orient," comments the Springfield Republican.

"Only a trusting Pollyanna would fail to recognize also that the spirit of the Japanese naval proposals tends to confirm the impression which the rest of the world has increasingly gained, and which the Japanese have endeavored increasingly to convey, that they are determined to map their own course in Manchuria."

respect to officers, nurses, warrant officers, and enlisted men which appear on reports of changes. The preparation of daily reports of changes is therefore a clear duplication of paper work in the field.

Paragraph 9, AR 605-120, requires detached officers to report directly to The Adjutant General on A.G.O. Form No. 80 all changes in their status, so with monthly rosters and detached officers' reports The Adjutant General will have full information monthly and individually of the status of the entire military personnel of the Army.

Revocation of AR 345-800, Report of Change, will necessitate report by commanders of posts, camps, and stations directly to The Adjutant General of the assignment to a permanent organization of each unassigned enlisted man arriving thereat. These reports will be by letter until receipt of assignment cards now being prepared by the War Department.

With the abolishment of personnel sections effective Jan. 1, 1933, troops, batteries, companies, detachments, and other Army and War Department activities will be saved the necessity of preparing and transmitting to the War Department and the other headquarters mentioned above daily reports of changes.

Oppose Navy Shifts

that economy and efficiency could be attained by the Navy taking over the work of the Coast Survey, both the House subcommittee in their report and Mr. Vinson in his statement presented this idea for consideration.

The House naval subcommittee presented their report to the naval committee, Dec. 22, signed by Representatives Kniffin, Barton and Boland, all Democrats. The Republican members of the group, Representatives Andrew and Hancock of N. Y., did not attend the hearings, and stated that for this reason they had not been able to sign the report. It was on the objection of Representative McClintic, Dem. of Okla., however, that the report was not accepted at that time. He contended that the views of Col. W. Clawson Roop, Director of the Bureau of the Budget, and the Director of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, should be secured before the committee went on record. Chairman Vinson thereupon directed them to look further in the matter.

Although planning to appear personally before the House Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments, Mr. Vinson was called out of town, Dec. 22, by the death of his mother-in-law, and presented a written statement at the meeting of that group Dec. 23, opposing the transfer of the Hydrographic Office and Naval Observatory.

"We must not forget," declared Mr. Vinson, "that these agencies are indispensable adjuncts of national defense. I feel that no useful purpose would be

His statement generally followed the lines of the Kniffin subcommittee report. The report of the subcommittee follows:

Report of Subcommittee

The subcommittee appointed on Dec. 13, 1932, to investigate the proposed transfer of the Hydrographic Office and the Naval Observatory from the Navy Department to the Department of Commerce, submits the following report:

Both the Hydrographic Office and the Naval Observatory were established to satisfy particular naval needs. They have been functioning most efficiently under the Navy Department for upwards of a century. Before concurring in the proposed transfers we should be assured they will achieve economy without any loss of efficiency. We must not forget that these agencies are indispensable adjuncts of national defense.

would not be affected in any manner by this clause. * * * *

The total savings to be accomplished by this proviso are believed to be small and the unequal application to various members of the service are such that it is believed it would be better to make this saving by a slight increase in the reduction in pay applicable to everyone rather than in the manner proposed."

Section 201 of the Economy Bill was enacted in practically the same form as was at that time under consideration. As enacted it provides:

"All provisions of law which confer upon civilian or noncivilian officers or employees of the United States Government or the municipal government of the District of Columbia automatic increases in compensation by reason of length of service or promotion are suspended during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933; but this section shall not be construed to deprive any person of any increment of compensation received through an automatic increase in compensation prior to July 1, 1932."

Shannon Committee to Report

Representative Joseph B. Shannon of Mo., chairman of the House committee investigating Government competition with private industry told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, Dec. 22, that there was little likelihood of his committee recommending outright abolition of the post exchange or the service clothing factories.

The Missourian declared that he felt that the amendment to last year's army appropriation act had "taken care of most of the abuses of the post exchange system." He could not prophecy whether any further restrictions would be recommended by his committee, he said, as the committee report has not yet been drafted. Questioned as to possible recommendations affecting the service clothing factories, Mr. Shannon also declined to indicate precisely what action would be taken by the group, but did say that the matter would probably be taken care of by limitation of the scope of the activities of the factories rather than by their abolition.

Although Chairman Shannon left town yesterday for the holidays, other members of the committee expect to start work immediately on drafting their report to the House, which is to be presented about Jan. 20. In this work, the committee will have the aid of a Mr. William Jett Louck, who Mr. Shannon described as "an expert in this field."

When the committee met earlier in the week (Dec. 19) Representative Shannon announced that "an astounding document had come to the notice of the committee recently," about "secrecy" of purchases of automobile tires and tubes for naval officers.

"It was a government-printed circular addressed to the 'patrons' of the Navy Commissary Station at Newport, R. I., dated July 1, 1932, and signed by T. S. Coulbourn, Commander, U. S. N.," the chairman explained. "It is a notice to the 'patrons' that the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts has authorized the Navy Commissary Stores at that station to take orders for automobile tires and tubes to be delivered under General Supply Committee contracts."

"The circular warned officers making the purchases to keep mum about them," Chairman Shannon said, and he cited excerpts he had made from the circular. "The circular says," the Chairman proceeded: "It may be stated that tires and tubes under these contracts are of a standard make and will be sold to you, the naval purchasers, at prices approximating 50 per cent of the average retail price for the same size and make."

Then, the Chairman added, paragraph 6 of this circular adds: "As a means of preventing causes of complaint on the part of local dealers which may eventually result in the discontinuance of tire and tube sales at present authorized, patrons are earnestly requested to hold any information concerning same as strictly confidential."

The first witness before the Committee was Capt. Brantz Mayer, SC, USN, in charge of the Officers' Uniform Shop at Brooklyn, N. Y. At the close of his examination he promised to recommend to the Secretary of the Navy the discontinuance of the shop after the close of the Winter season. Representative Rich (Rep.), of Woolrich, Pa., said a similar assurance insofar as officers' uniforms are concerned has been received by the Committee from the Army shop.

Chairman Shannon asked Captain Mayer if he did not know that there are complaints "up and down the coasts" that the naval stores are interfering with private industry. Mr. Shannon then asked him:

"Did you ever see an order issued by the commandant of the naval station at Newport, R. I., urging those buying automobile tires tubes from its naval commissary station there to keep mum about it?"

The witness said he had heard about it and of similar orders, which he said were intended to avoid unnecessary contentions in the automobile trade.

Captain Mayer said there was nothing secret about the purchases and that if the manufacturer of tires is willing to furnish tires at that price the matter is one for the "volition" of the manufacturer.

"The bids by the general supply committee," he said, "are made publicly."

"Isn't it true, that the one who directed 'keep this quiet' is the officer in command and that he is afraid of public opinion?" asked Chairman Shannon.

"He does not wish to stir up contentions among tire manufacturers," replied the witness.

Insular Affairs Report

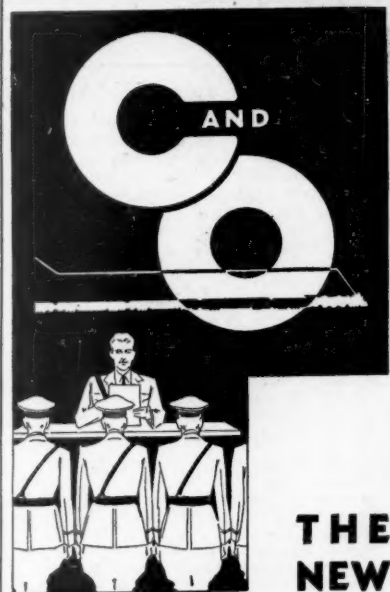

Extracts from the annual report of Brig. Gen. T. LeJ. Parker, USA, Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs for the fiscal year 1932 follow:

An event of primary interest and importance to the people of the Philippine Islands was the visit paid the islands by the Hon. Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, who arrived in Manila September 1, 1931, and embarked for the return voyage to the United States on September 26. This was the first visit of a Secretary of War to the islands since 1910, when the Hon. J. M. Dickinson spent about six weeks in the Philippines.

With a view to gaining a more intimate knowledge of current local conditions, to having the benefit of renewed personal contact with the people of the Philippine Islands, and to promoting effective cooperation between the bureau and the insular government, the Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs also visited the Philippine Islands in 1931. Leaving Washington on May 20, he arrived in Manila on June 18, remaining in the islands throughout the period of the visit of the Secretary of War, with whom the chief of bureau returned to the United States, arriving in Washington on October 26. Advantage was taken of the stay of over 14 weeks in the archipelago to travel extensively in most of the larger islands and the several provinces thereof and to confer with officials and others of the localities visited. Governor General Davis, officials of all branches of the insular government—executive, legislative, and judicial—and of the various provinces and cities visited, extended every courtesy and facility and, together with citizens engaged in many lines of nongovernmental activities, generously contributed of their time and experience in the effort to promote the purpose for which the trip was undertaken.

Attachment of Mexican Officer

The Secretary of War has authorized the attachment of Captain Jorge Castellanos, Mexican Army, to a Cavalry regiment at Fort Riley, Kansas, from January 10, 1933 to the opening of The Cavalry School for the 1933-34 course and further authorizes him to attend The Troop Officers' Course, 1933-34. Such attachment to be without expense to the United States Government.

Anti-aircraft Searchlight

(In view of the interest now being displayed in anti-aircraft searchlights and their mode of operation, and particularly in view of the use being made of them in modern maneuvers, the JOURNAL presents the following authoritative article on the subject.)

An anti-aircraft artillery regiment is composed of a headquarters battery, a gun battalion, and a machine gun battalion.

The gun battalion includes a headquarters battery and combat train, a searchlight battery, and three 3-inch anti-aircraft gun batteries of four guns each.

The machine gun battalion consists of a headquarters battery and combat train, and four machine gun batteries, each manning twelve .50-caliber machine guns.

The searchlight battery is the largest unit of the anti-aircraft regiment. It includes three platoons of five lights each, with six additional lights in reserve. Its purpose is to discover and illuminate aerial targets at night in order that the guns may open fire on the target. Each platoon consists of five searchlight-sections and the section consists of a searchlight and its power plant, a sound locator and corrector, and a comparator or distant electric controller by which the direction in which the searchlight beams point may be made parallel to the source of sound as indicated by the sound locator. As usually operated in the field, the sound locator searches the atmosphere in a certain sector to detect the sound of airplanes. When such sound is heard the operators center the source of sound, which they can do within about three degrees of arc, and a correction is applied for sound lag. As the sound locator continues following the target the searchlight is turned by means of the distant electric controller to the direction of the airplane, as shown on the dials of the comparator, and, when it is judged that the plane is within range of the searchlight, power is turned on and the searchlight beam should be directed towards the airplane.

The sound locator consists of a chassis on which are mounted four exponential horns in such a way that the four horns can be turned about vertical and horizontal axes. In effect these horns magnify the sound, thereby aiding binocular sense by which the human ear determines direction of sound. It is thus possible for the operators to hear a sound at greater distance and also to determine the direction of the sound with much greater accuracy than is possible with the unaided ears. In a still atmosphere an airplane can be detected when approximately ten miles away, the exact range varying with the strength of the sound, with atmospheric conditions, and with the presence of other sounds.

The searchlight is an electric arc light of 800,000,000 candle-power at the focus of a parabolic mirror sixty inches in diameter. It requires 150 amperes current at 78 volts. This power is furnished by the truck that carries the searchlight, the truck being provided with the necessary generator and switchboard. The range of the searchlight varies greatly with atmospheric conditions and the type of surface illuminated. With the average airplane as target it is generally conceded that a searchlight can pick up the target at an average range of two miles, but once the target is in the beam of light it can be seen for about six miles range.

In rear areas the searchlight battery usually protects a single objective, each platoon defending a 120° sector. A ring of lights is established about five miles from the objective, with rear lights some 4,000 yards behind the forward ring. A line of outposts four miles ahead of the forward lights gives warning of the approach of aircraft. The gun battalion, arranged in triangular position around the objective is thus given all-around illumination of possible targets.

Plead for Defense Appropriations

The Military Order of the World War, through its Legislative Committee, is urging Congress not to further reduce appropriations for the military activities.

Lt. Col. Fred B. Ryons, the Chairman of the World War Officers' Group, advised the Congressional Committee that Officers who served during the World War felt that the irreducible minimum of the personnel for the Regular Army should not be less than 14,000 officers and 165,000 enlisted men. He urged that the National Guard be permitted to receive pay for 48 armory drills during the fiscal year; that greater provision be made to grant active training for Reserve Officers during the coming summer, and that the R.O.T.C. and the Civilian Military Training Camps be strengthened. He further urged continued aid by the Federal Government to civilian rifle clubs and the advancement of the National Rifle Matches.

Colonel Ryons was accompanied by Lt. Col. Ralph C. Bishop, Maj. Charles Demonet, Maj. Edwin S. Bettelheim, Jr., and Lt. Clyde B. Lanham, each of whom enlarged upon the general program submitted by Colonel Ryons in accordance with the particular subject assigned to them.

THE FINEST BUICK EVER BUILT

For twenty-nine years, people have regarded Buick as a standard of value. Now, with the advent of the new Buick for 1933, they will find more reasons than ever for continuing to award Buick three-to-one preference over any other eight in its price range.

Trim, smart, low-swung, this new Buick is even bigger and more beautiful than any previous Buick model, and combines new smoothness of operation with its proved ability to give more and better miles.

Among the outstanding improvements are: new wheelbases 4" to 9" longer—new Bodies by Fisher with smart Wind-Stream Styling—new Valve-in-Head Straight Eight Engine cushioned in rubber—and new Fisher No-Draft Ventilation, Individually Controlled. This latter feature—one of the greatest health, comfort and safety factors since the closed body—permits each passenger to have the degree of ventilation he desires without danger of drafts to other occupants.

Decide now to see and drive this new Buick. Such an examination will quickly reveal to you that it is the finest Buick ever built. Also that Buick's moderate prices make it a truly economical investment—particularly when you realize that Buick is built to give many years of fine, reliable motoring.

TWENTY-FIVE OUTSTANDING FEATURES OF THE NEW BUICK FOR 1933

Admiral Riggs' Report

The increasingly important role motor vehicle accidents are assuming in their effect upon the health of the Navy is shown in the annual report of Rear Adm. C. E. Riggs, the Surgeon General of the Navy.

During the period covered by the report injuries resulting from motor vehicle accidents were responsible for approximately 17 per cent of all admissions to the sick list for accidental injuries and poisonings, as compared with 14 per cent in 1929 and 15.7 per cent in 1930. The number of deaths resulting from these accidents was 81, as compared with 48 in 1929 and 58 in 1930.

A study of the reports submitted in connection with these accidents indicate the vast majority occurred while the individuals were on leave or liberty.

Drowning, usually the leading cause of death in the Navy dropped to second place in 1930 and continued to remain in this position in 1931, having been exceeded both years by deaths from motor vehicle accidents. Drowning accounted for 40 deaths, as compared with 50 in 1929 and 37 in 1930. With the exception of 1930, the rate for drowning was lower than in any year since 1887, the first year in which complete statistics were published in the annual report of the Surgeon General.

There has been an almost progressive decline in aviation fatalities per unit of flying hours during the last ten years. A further gratifying decrease in the rate was experienced during 1931, with the result that the rate of fatalities per 100,000 flying hours was lower than in any year since aviation became an important part of the program of naval activities.

Among the leading causes of death were: motor vehicle accidents, drowning, suicides, diseases of the circulatory system, pneumonia, tuberculosis, abscess, appendicitis, influenza, tumors, burns, and intracranial injury.

Extracts from Admiral Riggs' report follow:

In recognition of important duties performed by the chief pharmacists in the administration of our hospitals and other medical department activities, the bureau has long been strongly in favor of further promotion of a limited number of chief pharmacists. It is a subject to which for years much thought and effort, so far without result, has been directed. It is hoped that when economic conditions permit, no further delay will be encountered in effecting suitable legislation for this worthy cause.

Hygienic and Sanitary Conditions Afloat
Overcrowding.—Overcrowding appears to be quite prevalent on many ships. This is of importance not only as a source of danger in the spread of certain infectious diseases but because it means personal discomfort due to a shortage of berthing space and inadequate toilet and bathing facilities. The dangers and discomforts are minimized by the large percentage of duty in the Tropics which permits sleeping on deck. Many reports speak of the unsatisfactory conditions under winter conditions and in the Tropics during the rainy season.

Ventilation and heating.—It seems apparent that ventilation and heating aboard ship leaves much to be desired. As with overcrowding, the defects are minimized by the small percentage of cruising under winter conditions. When ventilation is artificial the trouble seems to fall under two heads—first, the unequal distribution of heat and air throughout the ship, and second, the failure of the humidifying system when the temperature of the cold air from outside is raised above 70° F. Medical officers consider the low relative humidity in the heated air under winter conditions the most important cause of the acute respiratory troubles. One ship reports a marked improvement in ventilation by cleaning the ducts and reducing the size of certain outlets with canvas. In this way distribution was equalized, drafts greatly reduced and general comfort increased although the humidity was not increased.

Lighting.—Lighting appears to have been generally satisfactory, the defects noted having been remedied by either increased illumination or by a better distribution of light.

Clothing.—In general, clothing is reported as suitable with the exception of the white hat which appears to have few friends. The substitutes suggested are, however, not impressive. Shoes are also a subject of criticism.

There appears to be a demand for heavier clothing for those on duty or in positions exposing them to the full effects of low temperatures. Skin diseases due to the laundering of clothing does not appear to have been of sufficient frequency to excite comment. Clothing for aviators, while a subject for study, has so far led to no definite conclusions.

The Navy ration.—The ration appears to be adequate and well balanced, only a few activities reporting a shortage of vegetables. There seems to be an almost universal demand for better dishwashing and sterilizing facilities.

In many instances refrigeration is reported as inadequate or unsatisfactory in operation. Mechanical refrigeration as applied to small ice boxes and drinking fountains seems to be growing in favor. The ideal mess table seems still undiscovered. The reports on the metal types are conflicting, some praise and others condemn.

Water.—A study of the reports indicate that water is obtained from nearly all possible sources. This is particularly true of smaller ships because of the limited evaporator and storage capacity. Dangers from water obtained from questionable sources are reduced to a minimum by careful examination and the use of chlorine. Cases of intestinal trouble due to water seem to be confined to a few ships in Chinese waters. The USS Houston chlorinated all drinking water while in the Yangtze and Whangpoo Rivers.

Average age at time of death, all officers.—In 1931 there were 54 deaths among active officers and 71 among retired officers of the Navy and Marine Corps. Thirty-two deaths occurred among active officers of the Navy, and the average age at time of death was 40.3 years. There were 22 Marine officers who died during the year, and the average age at time of death was 38.6 years. Of the retired officers, 65 were officers of the Navy and 6 were officers of the Marine Corps. The average age at the time of death was 65.5 and 67.8, respectively.

Destroyers Go in Reserve

Destroyer Division Nine, composed of the USS Childs, flagship, Barry, Gilmer and Williamson, of the Scouting Force, which have been on the west coast since March 7, 1932, arrived at the Norfolk

Navy Yard, Dec. 17, to join in the rotating Reserve Squadron Nineteen. To replace those vessels four destroyers, USS Herbert, flagship, Leary, Schenck, Dickerson, now in rotating reserve will be placed in full commission and leave Norfolk for the west coast Jan. 3, 1933.

After the arrival of the Destroyer Division Nine, the commanding officer, Comdr. W. O. Wallace, USN, who has orders to duty at the Headquarters, 3rd Naval District, New York, will be relieved by Comdr. E. S. Stone, USN, who will return to the west coast in the USS Herbert.

The ships arriving from the west coast and their replacements are commanded by: Childs—Lt. Comdr. Harold F. Fultz, USN; Williamson—Lt. Comdr. Alfred H. Baisley, USN; Barry—Comdr. Ellis S. Stone, USN; Twiggs—Lt. Comdr. Stanley C. Norton, USN; Herbert—Lt. Comdr. Jesse H. Smith, USN; Leary—Lt. Comdr. Warner P. Portz, USN; Schenck—Lt. Comdr. Laurence T. DuBose, USN; Dickerson—Lt. Comdr. Chauncey R. Crutcher, USN.

Cruiser Bid Accepted

Secretary of the Navy Adams announced this week that the bid of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Quincy, Mass., of $8,196,000 had been accepted for the construction of the hull and machinery of the 10,000-ton 8-inch gun cruiser, No. CA 39.

Bids for construction of the vessel were opened in the Navy Department, Dec. 14. The cruiser, authorized by Act of Congress, Feb. 13, 1929, will be the sixteenth vessel of the heavy cruiser class of the United States Navy. Under provisions of the naval building holiday agreement, it cannot be laid down until after March 1, 1933.

Other 10,000-ton cruisers now under construction are: New Orleans, Portland, Astoria, Minneapolis, Tuscaloosa, San Francisco.

Improve Naval War College

Bids for the construction of an extension of the main building at the Naval War College will be opened in the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Navy Department, Jan. 18, 1933. Funds for this project were provided under the Emergency Relief and Construction Act of 1932.

The building to be erected will be an L-shaped structure, matching in architectural style the main War College building, which is of modified Clemish character. It will be partly of steel and partly of reinforced concrete construction, faced on the exterior with granite, and with a slate roof. The plans and specifications have been prepared by the Design Division of the Bureau of Yards and Docks.

On the first floor there will be a lecture hall having a seating capacity of about 425, and seventeen offices. The second floor will contain eight offices, and a maneuver room 70 feet wide by 105 feet long, where problems of fleet tactics can be worked out on a large scale. A drafting room is provided on the third floor.

It is expected that the new extension will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1933.

Submarine Class Graduates

Twenty-two naval officers, qualified for submarine duty following a six-months' instruction and actual submarine service at the Submarine Base, New London, Conn., were graduated Dec. 13. Diplomas were presented by Rear Admiral George T. Pettengill, commanding the base.

News of the Coast Guard

Decision as to officers who will command areas and other key positions under the reorganization plan was made at headquarters this week.

Capt. B. M. Chiswell, now commanding the New York Division, will become Commander of the Eastern Area, the most important of the new positions created, having charge of all operations on and off the Atlantic coast from Maine to North Carolina. As his board of strategy and patrol commanders, Captain Chiswell will have Capt. T. M. Molloy, Capt. H. E. Ridout and Comdr. P. F. Roach. One of these officers will be continuously at sea as commander of all vessels of the Eastern Area while the other two will serve ashore with the Area Commander.

Relieving Captain Chiswell at the New York Division is Capt. W. H. Shea, while Capt. W. J. Wheeler will remain in command of the Norfolk Division and Capt. W. H. Munter will stay in Boston, in command of the division there which will be known as the Boston rather than Eastern Division.

The Southern Area will comprise the old Florida East Coast Patrol Area and the Gulf Division, and will be commanded by Capt. H. G. Fisher. Under the new set-up, the Gulf Division loses the West coast of Florida and is renamed the New Orleans Division. The Florida East Patrol Area takes over the West coast of Florida and becomes the Jacksonville Area. Capt. C. F. Howell, now at Jacksonville, will remain in command of the new Division, and Capt. H. G. Fisher, at New Orleans, will remain there as commander of the new division in addition to being Area Commander.

As the Eastern Area problems are principally rum-running and smuggling and the organization contemplates that the Area Commander there will devote himself to these tasks, so Captain Fisher as Southern Area Commander will principally be occupied with hurricane and flood relief work, the foremost problems of that sector.

On the West Coast the present California and Northwestern Divisions will become the San Francisco and Seattle Divisions respectively. Both of the present commanders of these units, Capt. Eugene Blake, Jr., and Capt. H. D. Hinckley, will remain, while the former will be Western Area Commander. The Bering Sea Patrol and other Coast Guard activities in North Pacific waters will be placed under Captain Blake.

Reorganization of the Northern Area will not go into effect Jan. 15, 1933, as will the changes in other localities. In order to spread out the reorganization a bit, it has been decided to delay matters for a month or so, until the Great Lakes open. The Lakes Division becomes the Northern Area and it is to be divided into two divisions, the Cleveland Division and the Chicago Division. Capt. H. H. Wolf, now commanding the Lakes Division will probably become Area Commander and co. one of the divisions. The other division commander has not yet been determined upon.

Under revised schedules of operations, six destroyers will go south next month for gunnery exercises. The Abel P. Upshur, Semmes, Hunt, McDougal, Porter and Shaw, under the command of Comdr. F. A. Zeusler, will leave New York, Jan. 16 and remain in Florida waters for about a month returning north about March 1. Gunnery exercises will be held off St. Petersburg as usual and the vessels will put in to the Southern city for liberty.

In the past 15 Coast Guard destroyers have made the trip South each winter, but this year for reasons of economy, the cruise was called off. When this news leaked out a month or so ago, the citizens of St. Petersburg rose in arms, for it was estimated that Coast Guardsmen usually left nearly a million dollars in the city during the liberty period. Reconsideration of the matter resulted in a decision to send six of the torpedo-craft south.

Cadets from the Academy will visit Portugal, France, Germany, Denmark and England on their practice cruise this summer. Under an approved itinerary given out at Headquarters this week, the cadets on the cutters Sebago and Cayuga will leave New London May 25.

The itinerary is as follows:

	Arrive	Leave
Quantico, Virginia	May 27	June 10
Hampton Roads, Va.	June 11	June 12
Lisbon, Portugal	June 23	June 27
London, England	July 1	July 8
Copenhagen, Denmark	July 10	July 15
Hamburg, Germany	July 16	July 21
Havre, France	July 23	July 30
New London, Conn.	Aug. 11

The itinerary contemplates passing through the Kiel Canal on July 15, 1933. Short Range Battle Practice for the Cadet Practice Squadron will be held during the period Aug. 15-25, 1933, the exact dates to be announced later. This practice will be held off the Virginia Capes, as was the case last year.

"Established in obedience to an insistent demand for an official organ for members of the American Defense and those concerned with it, The Army and Navy Journal will be published in the interest of no party; it will be controlled by no clique. Its independence will be absolute. Its interests will be directed solely to the inculcation of sound military ideas and to the elevation of the public service in all its departments.—From Vol. I, No. 1, of The Army and Navy Journal, published August 29, 1863.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1932

"The nation that cannot resist aggression is constantly exposed to it. Its foreign policy is of necessity weak, and its negotiations are conducted with disadvantage because it is not in condition to enforce the terms dictated by its sense of right and justice."—GROVER CLEVELAND.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR

THE Country and the Services will exchange Yuletide greetings with the same loyal affection as in the past. The Country knows that its Army and Navy, in spite of the attempts of pacifists to reduce their strength and to lower their morale by unfair pay cuts, are bulwarks for its defense. The Army and Navy know that in the final analysis they can rely upon the sense of justice of the American people to provide them with the means to maintain the efficiency essential for their effective discharge of the mission entrusted to them. It is this mutual knowledge which is the basis for the hearty wishes of one for the other, for the Country is the Army and the Navy, and the Army and Navy are the Country!

IT IS BECAUSE OF THE IDENTITY of the Country and the Services that there is equal concern for the welfare of the people. The Services are fully cognizant of the necessity for economy, which means, in their case, reduction of expenses. That they have applied, and with a rigor which compares most favorably with the procedure of the civilian branches of the Government. What the Services retained in their budget estimates were retained because imperatively needed. Their yardstick is different from that of other branches. As President Hoover stated, their strength, particularly that of the Navy, must be determined by the activities of foreign nations. Moreover, National Defense is the primary obligation of the Federal Government, and to be effective it must be sufficient in personnel and material, and in the character of its morale, to assure protection for our territory and our vast interests everywhere. It is possible, of course, for Congress arbitrarily to cut our man power and to provide inadequate materiel. It is to be regretted that both suggestions are under consideration by the House Appropriations Committee in connection with the pending Army and Navy appropriation bills. Should they be adopted, we warn the country that the Services, already below the strength which the General Staff and the General Board have fixed upon as necessary for the general welfare, will lack the ability to act in an emergency as the Nation would expect them to act.

WE HAVE NO SYMPATHY WITH THE naval suggestion of a cut in pay in exchange for the abandonment of the so-called pay freeze provision of the Economy Act. In the first place, Congress would agree to no such trade, and in the second, if it were to apply a reduction, it would adopt a percentage nearer 10 per cent than 3.9 per cent, as proposed. Moreover, a pay cut would not be limited to the active list; it undoubtedly would be so phrased as to comprehend the retired list. In our view, the Services have sound grounds for requesting that the pay freeze provision be repealed in its application to them. The large increases in pay granted to civilian employees in times of prosperity were denied to the Services, active and retired, and the furlough cut, combined with the pay freeze, has added to the injustice they have suffered for years. Moreover, the pay schedules of 1908, which were adopted in the light of the living costs of the time, are in fact still applicable with the living costs of today higher than they were twenty-four years ago. We urge the Senate Economy Committee, which is considering the whole subject of economy in salaries, to give consideration to these facts and recommend that the pay freeze provision be repealed. Likewise, there should be repeal of the furlough reduction. It cannot be stressed too strongly that the Services are in an entirely different relation to the Government than civilian employees. This is particularly true of those on the retired list, commissioned and enlisted, and the contract which exists between them, as well as active officers and men, ought not, in common decency, to be disregarded. The Navy suggestion of a pay cut, though in its terms confined to the active list, is in accord with the President's recommendation of a cut of 11 per cent in civilian pay. Mr. Hoover carefully excluded the Army and Navy from his recommendation, this at the earnest insistence of General MacArthur, Chief of Staff. With the Navy Department proposing a pay cut immediately following the President's recommendation, the movement so to reduce expenses will be strengthened and the danger grows of a general application of the principle. It is to be hoped a broader view of the situation will be taken by congressional leaders, and that the consideration given will be directed to the repeal of the pay freeze provision, and that relating to the furlough.

UNDER THE LEADERSHIP of Representative Coyle, whose interest in the Marine Corps is based upon his long and honorable service therein, the House Naval Committee has determined to offer stiff opposition to the reduction in the enlisted strength of this organization. When the Naval Appropriations bill is reported to the House next month, it will contain a provision granting pay for the smaller force proposed by the President. The report of the sub-committee of the Naval Committee, which has been holding hearings in the matter, will point out the value of the Marine Corps both on board ships as well as for expeditionary purposes, and it will show that the national interest demands no weakening of its strength. The decision of the House with respect to the Marine Corps is of great importance to National Defense. Should the reduction be approved, foes of proper armament will move against the Army and the Navy and with members of the House committed it will be difficult to get them to change their attitude. Under the circumstances, all friends of National Defense should support Major Coyle and his associates in the fight they will make.

Just a Few Slips

The credit for the most remarkable feat ever accomplished by the American Army must be given to General Johnson Hagood. "Who's Who in America" for 1930-1 states that he crossed the Rhine on November thirty-first, 1918.

According to "Basic Military Training" the American Army rifle is 63 miles long. On Page 224 of this book appears a drawing of the rifle, and over it a scale wherein one inch equals a mile.

We now boast a 245th Corps Area, according to a Brooklyn paper which, when it published a photo of a Spanish War Veterans union (reunion, I mean) put Colonel Pendry down as its commander (They'd probably meant Coast Artillery). General Nolan was in the picture so they probably concluded all C.A.'s were Corps Areas.

What About His Hearing?

The captain of a small trading vessel wanted to land some contraband at a certain port. Approaching the customs officer, he said: "Joe, if I put a ten-shilling note over each eye could ye see?"

"I could not," said Joe. "And if I had one in me mouth I couldn't speak."

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Marine Corps Cut.—A study made by Marine Corps Headquarters as to the effect of the proposed 1743 reduction in the enlisted strength of the Marine Corps estimates that 346 non-commissioned officers of that branch of the service will have to be reduced one grade or more on June 30 next, if the curtailment is made. According to the estimate made this week, the following reductions will be necessary: 12 of 174 quartermaster sergeants; 2 of the 38 paymaster sergeants; 14 of the 244 first sergeants; 15 of the 275 gunnery sergeants; 7 of the 130 staff sergeants; 64 of the 986 sergeants; 83 of the 1705 corporals; and 136 of the 2473 first class privates. In addition, all of the 12 supply sergeants will be reduced and one of the 12 quartermaster sergeants to be demoted will have to be dropped two grades.

The question of how the reductions would be made has not yet been considered, as officials are hopeful that the enlisted cut can be avoided. A good case against curtailment was made out at the hearings held last week by a subcommittee of the House Naval Affairs Committee, and although the report will not be made until next week, it is expected that the subcommittee will recommend that the Naval Affairs Committee oppose the reduction. It is further expected that the committee will report out a resolution against the cut when the bill comes out of the appropriations committee.

Of course, appropriations are handled by Committee on Appropriations, and any recommendation to that group or the House that the budget estimates be increased will have hard sledding. Representative Joseph Byrns, chairman of the appropriations committee, announced early in the session, that the committee would not make any increase over individual budget estimates.

Defeat of Executive Orders Likely.—Defeat of the President's consolidation order was freely predicted as the House Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments, concluded hearings on the proposals yesterday.

Representative Cochran, of Missouri, chairman of the committee, declared at the close of yesterday's session that he will introduce a resolution regarding the Executive order and bring it before his committee after the holidays "in order that we may have something before us." It was indicated that the resolution will propose nullification of all of the transfers. The matter will be considered by the group in executive session.

Practically every witness appearing before the group has advocated that the Army engineers retain control of river and harbor and other construction work now performed by them. Although no witnesses have been heard on the proposed transfer of the hydrographical office and Naval observatory to the Department of Commerce, statements by representative Carl Vinson, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, and Rear Adm. Frank B. Upham, USN, chief of the bureau of navigation, opposing the move, were read into the record at yesterday's meeting.

Stoppage of Officers Pay.—Considerable interest has been evidenced in the action of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, as reported in the Journal last week, in voting to recommend to the Senate passage of S. 4810 "to authorize the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy to withhold the pay of officers, warrant officers' and nurses of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps to cover indebtedness to the United States under certain conditions." The bill as submitted was recommended by the War Department. The Comptroller General, however, was dissatisfied with the provisions of the bill and sent a representative to the committee in an effort to make it more drastic. The committee nevertheless followed the lines suggested by the Department.

Senator Reed, chairman of the Committee, this week drafted a report on the bill and submitted it to the Senate as follows:

"The object of the pending measure is to overcome the effect of the decision of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia in McCarl v. Pence (18 Fed. Rep. (N. S.) 809) which held that under section 1766 of the Revised Statutes, as amended by the act of July 16, 1892, no pay of commissioned officers of the Army or Navy, except disbursing officers, could be stopped even in the face of an indebtedness due and owing by such officers to the Government.

"In the course of the administration of the affairs of the War and Navy Departments necessitating the construction of numerous complex statutory provisions, it is inevitable that minor errors of construction of law will occur which result subsequently, after a fuller consideration of the matter by the accounting officers, in a disallowance in the disbursing officer's accounts. Prior to the Pence decision it was possible to stop an officer's pay to recoup to the Government such indebtedness owing by the payee. At the present time this is impossible and the indebtedness rests as one on the shoulders of the bonded disbursing officer which must be liquidated by him sooner or later unless there is a voluntary refundment by the payee or legislative relief secured.

"There exists at the present time statutory legislation to stop the pay of a disbursing officer on account of an indebtedness due and owing by him (R. S. 1766) and there exists also statutory legislation to stop the pay of an enlisted man in the event of an indebtedness on his part, but generally with reference to other military and naval personnel there is no stoppage legislation.

"The present measure is drafted along lines of legislation already existing on the statute books with reference to disbursing officers (R. S. 1766) and with reference to enlisted personnel, act of May 22, 1928. In the main it merely enlarges the provisions of existing law to include all that military and naval personnel which is not now included within any statutory stoppage provision.

"Section 1 of this measure down to the first proviso is substantially the language of Revised Statutes 1766, except that it restricts the right of the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy to stop the pay of such military or naval personnel which arises solely out of disallowances by the Comptroller General of the United States (save two exceptions next to be mentioned) which is the governmental agency which has been established by the Congress to pass upon the legality of payments.

"The first proviso of section 1 authorizes the stoppage of pay of such military or naval personnel for any indebtedness acknowledged in writing by a debtor or which is shown by the final judgment of a civil court.

"The second proviso of this section as proposed to be amended limits the stoppage to one-half of the pay of any such military or naval personnel.

"The third proviso of section 1 is substantially similar to the provisions of section 1766 of the Revised Statutes and like that section is designed to provide for a means of litigating in the courts at the request of the alleged debtor the merits of the case in order that he may be properly protected against mistaken action by the accounting officers followed by an erroneous stoppage of pay by the Secretary of War or Secretary of the Navy.

"The last proviso of this bill is designed to establish a statute of limitations whereby after the expiration of a reasonable time which the committee believes should be six months, the nonaction by the Attorney General toward instituting a suit against the payee in order that his rights may be determined one way or the other, shall result in his indebtedness being wiped off and the disallowances by the Comptroller General against the disbursing officer resting on the same basis removed. It is believed to be but fair that both the payee and the disbursing officer should not remain under a cloud of a threatened suit indefinitely, and that with the lapse of a reasonable time to examine into the merits of the case a decision should be had either to sue him or drop the matter.

"The provision in this act providing for attorneys' fee to reimburse the payee who is sued and who is successful in the courts, is believed to be eminently fair in order that he may not be under the necessity of standing a great expense in a matter in which the Government is finally determined to be wrong. Instances are of record in the War and Navy Departments; where disbursing officers have been sued on their bonds and have easily prevailed in such suits as a result of a finding by the court that the payments made by them were entirely legal. In such cases, however, the disbursing officer must stand the expense due to attorneys' fees and other incidental expenses. The object of this proviso is to avoid that unfair condition in case the decision of the court is in the defendant's favor."

Army Retirements.—The retirement of Brig. Gen. Paul A. Wolf, USA, on Dec. 31, 1932, was announced in Special Orders this week. General Wolf was found incapacitated for active service on account of disability incident thereto.

General Wolf was born in Illinois in 1868 and appointed to the Military Academy from that state. Upon graduation from West Point in 1890 he was commissioned in the Infantry. At the outbreak of the World War he was made a temporary colonel and then a brigadier general in the National Army. Following the war he reverted to the rank of colonel, again becoming brigadier general in 1925. General Wolf was awarded a Distinguished Service Medal and a Silver Star Citation. His name was on the General Staff Corps Eligible list and he was a graduate of the Infantry-Cavalry School and the Army War College.

Lt. Col. Everett D. Barlow, QMC, Washington, D. C., was this week ordered to proceed to his home and await retirement.

2nd Lt. Phineas H. Adair, Inf., Washington, D. C., also was ordered to his home to await retirement.

Qualification Card for Reserve Officers.—Consideration is being given to the question of a revision of Form No. 0761 A.G.O., and of a change in its method of preparation. When that form was originated in 1921, much the larger portion of the appointees in the Officers' Reserve Corps were former officers. The form was devised with that point in mind, and in order that Corps Area Commanders might have a record of such prior service for those under their assignment jurisdiction it was necessary that the form be prepared in the War Department where records are available. However, at the present time, less than ten per centum of appointees have had prior active commissioned service.

It is proposed now that Chiefs of Arms or Services prepare Form 0761 only for those to be retained in the Arm and Service Assignment Group and that Corps Area Commanders prepare the form for those in the Corps Area Assignment Group. Under this plan the Chief of Arm or Service, in making recommendation for appointment will, if desired for Arm and Service Assignment Group, make a request to that effect. If no such request is made by the Chief of Arm or Service, one copy of W.D., A.G.O. Form No. 170 will be sent to the Corps Area Commander with the notice of appointment. Receipt of the copy in this manner will constitute notice to the Corps Area Commander that the appointee has been placed in the Corps Area Assignment Group effective upon acceptance by him of the appointment tendered. The Corps Area Commander will then prepare the Form 0761 for his records.

In order that the Corps Area Commander may be able to prepare the Form 0761 accurately from records available—such as file record of examination, Form 170, and copy of appointment notice—it is necessary to revise that form. A tentative revision is now under study. If adopted it will be printed on a card of the same size and color as the present 0761.

New Pursuit Airplane.—Another two-seater Pursuit airplane is making its bow to the Air Corps, this being a new bi-place ship which was recently delivered to the Air Corps Materiel Division, Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

The new airplane, technically known as the YIP-25, is an all metal low wing monoplane with monocoque fuselage, powered with a single V-1570 engine. The radiator is of the tunnel type. The retractable landing gear folds flush into the wing. The cockpits are enclosed, the design being cleanly streamlined into the lines of the airplane. The YIP will be given full performance testing by the Wright Field test pilots.

Pay Proposal

ment Appropriation Bill (H.R. 13520) continues this Section in effect. If it is unchanged it will, therefore, apply to the naval service throughout the entire fiscal year 1934. The following comments are, therefore, submitted:

This section having now been effective approximately six months, I desire to bring to your attention its actual operation in the naval service and to recommend a change therein by a method which, without effecting the amount of money which reverts to the Treasury, will eradicate its inequitable and especially objectionable features. If this change is approved it would probably become effective about March 1, 1933.

Insofar as the Navy list is concerned this section will effect a saving to the Government between the first of March, 1933, and the first of July, 1933, of $116,652.00 in the Navy and $27,697.52 in the Marine Corps, or a total of $144,349.52 for both services. For the fiscal year 1934 the savings will be $1,133,905 for the Navy and $166,934 for the Marine Corps, or a total of $1,300,839 for both services. These figures are shown in detail in enclosures. They have been compiled carefully by taking into account the pay of each individual officer who would be affected.

These savings have been effected by denying increased pay to certain officers upon promotion to higher rank, upon promotion to a higher pay grade in the same rank, and by denying increased pay which would otherwise have accrued to an officer under basic law for length of service. The savings effected will thus be borne by a comparatively small proportion of the officers of the service. Those officers who happen, during the fiscal year 1933, not to be entitled to promotion have in no way been affected by this section. Similarly if this section is continued in effect during the fiscal year 1934 those officers who do not chance to be entitled to promotion during that period will still in no way be affected thereby. The effect of this has already been to cause very great inequities in pay throughout the Navy list.

There are numerous cases in the service in which, due merely to a difference of a few days in the date of entry into the service or in the date of promotion, one officer is now losing from 25 to 35 per cent of the compensation which he would otherwise be receiving, whereas other officers of the same ability, rank and length of service are losing 8½ per cent due to the operation of this act.

There are many cases in which officers whose original entrance into the Naval Academy was prior to July first are receiving considerably more pay than their classmates, senior to them, who happened to enter the Academy on or subsequent to July first. As a concrete example of this, of the class which graduated in 1913 forty officers now in the service entered prior to July 1, 1903, and thirty-four entered subsequent to that date. These officers were due this year for an increase of pay and allowances amounting to $915 each, due to the completion of twenty-three years service. Through the operation of Section 201 the forty officers who entered prior to July 1, 1903, received this increase while it was denied to the thirty-four others, many of whom are senior to many of the forty who did receive the increase. The officer who stood number one in this class and who has already been selected for promotion to the rank of commander happened to be among the thirty-four who did not receive the increase nor will he receive any increase when he is promoted to commander; the officer who stood fourth from the bottom of this class and who has not as yet been selected for promotion was among the forty who did receive the increase merely because he entered before July 1st. This is merely one of a very large number of examples which might be cited.

It needs no argument to show the inequity of this condition or the injustice thereof. The career of an officer is a lifetime profession. When he enters the service its requirements on the one hand and its prospects on the other, provided he meets these requirements, are clearly set forth. Whatever the economic condition of the country, it is believed essential that the relative emoluments of officers as between themselves should be maintained, thus giving recognition to rank, experience and responsibility. It is, therefore, recommended, without in any way changing the amount of savings which it is considered necessary to effect from the officers of the service, that this amount be obtained by a percentage reduction of pay applicable to the entire active list.

Assuming that this change would become effective about March 1, 1933, the total pay of commissioned and warrant officers of the active list of the Navy, for the four-month period, March 1 to July 1, 1933, is $10,027,635 and for the Marine Corps $1,237,326, or an aggregate of $11,264,961. The aggregate savings to the Government from the effect of Section 201 in the Navy and Marine Corps during this same period was shown above to be $144,349.52. This saving could be obtained by a uniform reduction of 1.3 per cent of the pay of the active officers of the Navy and Marine Corps. This reduction would save the Government the same amount of money as the present provisions of Section 201 and would permit emoluments of officers to flow relative to each other in accordance with rank and length of service.

Similarly for the year 1934 the attached papers show that the savings for the Navy will amount to $1,133,905 and from the Marine Corps $166,934, or an aggregate of $1,300,839 from the two services. The pay of active officers carried in the 1934 estimates is $30,335,548 for the Navy and $3,441,105 for the Marine Corps, or an aggregate of $33,776,653 for both services. The reduction of the pay of each officer of 3.9 per cent of his pay for the year 1934 would provide this sum and leave the officers of the service with a uniform pay scale relative to each other. Incidentally such a law would be far easier to administer, as it would continue in effect the laws of long standing concerning pay of the Navy and Marine Corps with merely uniform percentage reduction in pay.

It is, therefore, recommended that Section 201 Title II, of the Act approved June 30, 1932, Public No. 212, 72nd Congress, "Making appropriations for the Legislative Branch of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, and for other purposes" be amended by the addition of a proviso reading as follows:

"Provided that after March 1, 1933, the provisions of this Section shall not apply to officers on the active list of the Navy and Marine Corps, but in order to effect the savings to the Government that would otherwise be made if the provisions of this section remained applicable to officers of the Navy and Marine Corps, the pay of all such officers on the active list shall be reduced by 1.3 per cent from March 1, 1933, to and including June 30, 1933, after which date the pay of all such officers shall be reduced by 3.9 per cent until June 30, 1934."

Very sincerely yours,
/s/ C. F. ADAMS.

Meanwhile Time Goes On

IN America today, thousands of men and women are doing themselves grave injustices. Possessing the means to live well and enjoy life, they are denying themselves the well-deserved fruits of their labors for fear of what others may think. Meanwhile time goes on—time which in the future can only be regretted if it is not made to yield all that it holds of happiness . . . Among the self-denying thousands are many with deep desires to own new Cadillacs or La Salles. Some of them, no doubt, now have one or the other and are looking forward to possessing the newest models. Others, perhaps, have long wished to become Cadillac or La Salle owners and are impatient over a self-imposed delay . . . It is not our privilege to tell these people what their course of action should be. But it may be permissible for us to remind them that time goes on and the ability to enjoy fine things cannot last forever.

MERCHANT MARINE

These annual conferences, made up of outstanding representatives of the country's shipping, manufacturing, farming, and foreign trade interests, have been potent factors in bringing the merchant marine to its present high stage of development, not only by their constructive handling of specific problems, but by bringing together the maritime industries and the general public in support of a policy aimed to safeguard and promote American commercial shipping and American foreign trade.

Tucker, 3d, USN, in Christ Church, Norfolk, Va., Dec. 28.

A brilliant naval marriage took place Dec. 10 at the West Virginia House at the Naval Base, Norfolk, Va., when Miss Mary Elizabeth Riddle, only daughter of Capt. and Mrs. William King Riddle, became the bride of Lt. Carlyle Leland Helber, USN, son of Mrs. Clara L. Helber and the late Charles Thaddeus Helber, of Red Bud, Ill. The ceremony, which was performed by Chaplain Bart D. Stevens, was witnessed only by a small group of relatives and friends and was followed by a large and brilliant reception, at which nearly three hundred guests were present.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

She had as her maid of honor, Miss Ida Patterson Walton, and the bridesmaids were Miss Dorothea Harrison, of Philadelphia; Miss Elizabeth Washburn, of Rye, N. Y.; Miss Mary Miller Kress, of Philadelphia, and Miss Stuart Groner.

The bridegroom had as his best man his brother-in-law, Lt. Harold Coldwell, of Annapolis, and his groomsmen were Lt. Richard F. Armknecht, Lt. Walter Jones, Lt. Bradford Bartlett, Lt. Walter Lee and Lt. R. E. Van Meter.

Later in the evening Lieutenant and Mrs. Helber left for a wedding trip to Havana at the conclusion of which they will reside in Philadelphia, where the bridegroom is now stationed for duty.

There were many out of town relatives and friends present at the wedding.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Young Hannay, daughter of Col. John R. R. Hannay, USA and Mrs. Hannay of The Presidio, San Francisco, Cal., to Mr. George A. Downing of Livingston, S. I., took place Dec. 20 at New York City. The Rev. Phillip C. Jones performed the ceremony in the presence of near relatives and a few friends.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her aunt, Mrs. Cox, dispensed with attendants.

Mr. Downing, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Downing of Newport, R. I., had Warren Brown for best man. There were no ushers.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Gen. S. B. M. Young, USA.

Capt. I. I. Yates, CC, USN, and Mrs. Yates, announce the marriage of their daughter, Clarice Brooke, to Lt. Walter Price, USN, December 18, at Manila, P. I.

The wedding took place in the Cathedral of St. Mary and St. John. The bride was given in marriage by Capt. Arthur K. Atkins, USN, a close friend of the bride's parents. After the ceremony Lieutenant and Mrs. Price left Manila for Baguio, where they will remain until after the holidays. Lieutenant Price is attached to the USS Paul Jones, flagship of Destroyer Squadron 5, United States Asiatic Fleet. Captain and Mrs. Yates, parents of the bride, reside at the Kennedy-Warren Apartments, Washington, D. C.

Prize Story Winners

Second prize was awarded to June Williamson Barnes, wife of Lt. G. D. Barnes, of Ft. Benning, Ga., for her story "Under the Christmas Stars."

Third prize was awarded to Capt. Harry R. Pierce, USA, Ft. MacArthur, Calif., for "A Christmas Story."

Selecting the prize winners was an exacting task for the judges who commented in a highly complimentary manner on the high quality of stories entered in the contest. While service life naturally lends itself readily as a subject for narrative technique, the problem of isolating and relating in an interesting and concise manner a single event in the space of 600 words calls for a genuine appreciation of the art of story telling.

The judges also commented on the large number of service women who contributed stories. It is worthy of note that both first and second prizes were awarded to service women.

Covering a diversity of themes, a large variety of stories were entered in the contest. They covered every type of short story. Some delineated a character typifying the Christmas spirit, some were pure atmosphere stories giving a seasonal impression, and others were of the action type carrying their message through the medium of example.

As a tribute to the wisdom of the authors, virtually all of the stories were based on service backgrounds and such situations as the authors would likely be familiar. Children played leading parts in a large number, as in the prize winning story. Many were based on service family life, as was that of the second prize winner. Enlisted men were used as central figures in a number, too, as in the case of Captain Pierce's story.

While the majority of entries were from women, officers of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard were contributors as were enlisted men. There were even a few from service children.

Because of the general excellence and the difficulty of selecting the three prize winners, the judges asked that the stories written by the following be given honorable mention.

Mary Christmas

by ELIZABETH P. WING.

THE littlest passenger's mother and Lieutenant daddy were both sick. Sea sick they said, but Mary couldn't believe that the big grey waves, which were tumbling their ship about, could make anyone sick.

No other little children were on board, an unheard of condition on an Army Transport, so Mary was allowed to do as she wished. This freedom might have been welcome at another time, but December twenty-fourth was no day to be alone.

The astounding thing was that the next day was not to be Christmas after all. In some incomprehensible way a big ship ran into a line somehow, and lost a day. Mary couldn't see any lines in the water, but the Captain said there were, and he knew!

"Do you mean, Captain," she said hopelessly, "Tomorrow will be just a day like any other day?"

Old in the way of the sea, but a novice in the ways of seven years old, he merely nodded yes, he supposed so.

Mary's eyes shone with unshed tears. But a soldier's daughter mustn't cry! Soldiers never cry!

The stalwart sailor discovered that the gusty sea must have blown some salt spray into his eyes. His throat felt queerly.

"Would you miss old Santa so much, little Mary?" he said gently.

"Well, of course," she answered bravely. "We couldn't ask him to come way out here if it wasn't even Christmas. With daddy and mother sick, I guess going to the Philippines isn't very nice. Guess big folks don't like it either."

A choked up feeling surprised the old Captain, and he found himself longing to take the littlest passenger in his arms. Bosh, the sea was no place for sentiment, he thought, disgusted with himself. Naturally the kid felt badly, but she must be a good soldier, and behave as such.

The next morning Mary felt something in the wind. The Captain had a secret with her mother. It would happen at one o'clock. The stupid elders were shouting Merry Christmas at each other. Didn't they know it wasn't really Christmas! Santa hadn't come. The Captain said he wouldn't. She didn't care anyhow, that is, not very much. It must be a gorgeous secret, for the Captain's face was wreathed in smiles.

There was a hustle and bustle all around the ship. Mother, up once again, came to Mary with a planning eye.

"Do you think you can dress yourself, dear?" she said. "I can't contemplate that stateroom again, so hurry and you'll be ready in time."

Mary dashed down the companion way. This was almost as nice as Christmas. The socks and shoes were easy, and she washed her face and hands. No matter that the little dress went on hind side before. She felt that she looked very nice as she was. Wild with impatience she flew back on deck and was surprised to find all the passengers there before her.

There came General Norton. "May I escort you, Miss Mary?" he said with his best bow hitherto reserved for pretty ladies. In a daze she slipped her hand into his big one, and followed by the gay company, went down to the dining saloon.

At the head of the long center table stood the Captain of the Ship smiling his welcome. The Big General's Wife had given her seat of honor to the littlest passenger. A Christmas Tree loaded with gifts glittered in the center of the board.

Just when she thought she couldn't stand the joy any longer she saw the Captain had his arms outstretched to her, and she flew into them.

It was nice going to the Philippines after all.

the land and naval forces.

To the cadets and midshipmen who will spend the Yuletide at the Academies I particularly extend greetings. Those who cannot go home because of the distance, will have the satisfaction of knowing that the hearts of their parents are with them, and those who must make up their academic and physical requirements should realize that the loving sympathy and hopes of their families are with them. Remember, boys, a lot of us have been in your boots, and we got our commissions after all!

Mr. James F. Pershing is critically ill in New York as the result of a stroke.

He is the brother of General Pershing and Miss May Pershing, both of whom upon learning of his condition at once hastened to his bedside, where they found his wife and sons, James F., Jr. and Frank. The Services extend sympathy to the family and join with them in the hope of the early recovery of the patient.

In spite of the unanswerable report made by Major General de Witt, Quartermaster General, there will be a renewal of the fight at this session to get rid of the transports and government control of the Panama Mail Railroad Company. General MacArthur and Admiral Pratt will stand shoulder to shoulder against this uneconomical raid.

Both hold that the transports are the trains of the Army and the Fleet and to abolish them would not only seriously impair operations but would actually cause greater cost to the Government.

I happened to run across a bulletin of the National Education Association the other day, which shows that of the tax dollar 24 cents goes to education, protection, meaning police and state military organizations, 21 cents, social welfare 9 cents, general government 7 cents, and all other 20 cents. Note that the General Government costs, which include the support of the Army and Navy, are less than one-third of education. Of course, everyone is for education, but I note that New York has a debt for this purpose of $260,000,000 a rise in a decade from $43,000,000, and that Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio and California have a debt in excess of $200,000,000. Investments in property and equipment of the public schools of the Nation amount to eleven billion dollars. Probably a drive for lower educational costs will be made.

I have seen a news release and covering letter that was sent out last week to various publishers of daily newspapers by the World Peaceways, Inc. (which organization, the letterhead explains, succeeds "World Peace Posters, Inc."). Frank W. Nye, managing director and treasurer of the Peaceways, informs the publishers that his organization is intended to "serve the leading, church, school, club and welfare world peace groups as news bureau and advertising counsel."

"We are seeking ultimately," Mr. Nye writes, "a government appropriation of $48,000,000 a year or more for the purchase of display space at card rates in newspapers, magazines and other media of advertising."

"It is perfectly obvious," he informs the publishers, "that, if successful, this plan to advertise peace will be profitable both directly and indirectly to all publishers of important newspapers and magazines in the United States."

As one would expect, the name of Frederick C. Libby, pacifist leader of the National Council for the Prevention of War, appears as one of the executive committee. As one of the endorsers of the plan appears the name of Mary E. Woolley, who was one of the delegates sent by the United States to the Geneva conference on disarmament.

I suppose that these organizers propose to take the $48,000,000 out of Army and Navy appropriations.

I don't believe this dangling of government millions before the noses of American newspaper editors will diminish one whit their insistence on a treaty strength Navy and an Army capable of defending our continental and insular possessions—as for the editors of my acquaintance, I know it will make them even more zealous.

National Guard Notes

An effort will be made in 1933 by the Adjutant General's Department to correct certain administrative difficulties connected with the annual immunization of the National Guard personnel. Units will be required to submit lists of individuals to be vaccinated and inoculated on or before January 1 instead of April 1, as formerly. This earlier start will enable all to have the work completed before armory inspection. Owing to new enlistments, however, between armory inspection and field training encampments, it is probable that many units will be forced to supplement their original lists later on. In this case it is hoped they will wait a reasonable time until the status of personnel is stabilized for field training in order that not more than one additional list will be necessary.

Chicago—Plans for the 1933 field training of the National Guard of the Sixth Corps Area have been completed and tentatively approved by the Militia Bureau. It is contemplated holding encampments as follows:

53rd Cavalry Brigade Headquarters and Headquarters Troop at Camp Williams, Wis., from June 16 to June 30, 1933.

58th Field Artillery Brigade, Illinois National Guard, at Camp McCoy, Wis., from July 1 to July 15, 1933.

57th Field Artillery Brigade and Detachment Headquarters, 32nd Division, Wisconsin National Guard, at Camp McCoy, Wis., from July 15 to July 20, 1933.

64th Brigade, 135th Medical Regiment,

32nd Military Police Company, 32nd Tank Company, and a Detachment of Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 32nd Division, Wisconsin National Guard, at Camp Williams, Wis., from July 15 to July 20, 1933.

119th Field Artillery, Michigan National Guard, at Camp Grayling, Mich., from July 22 to August 5, 1933.

33rd Division (less 58th Field Artillery Brigade), 8th Infantry, and 106th Cavalry (Illinois National Guard), at Camp Grant, Ill., from July 29 to Aug. 12, 1933.

The entire Michigan National Guard (less 119th Field Artillery), at Camp Grayling, Mich., from Aug. 5 to Aug. 19, 1933.

202nd Coast Artillery (Anti-Aircraft), Illinois National Guard, at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., from Aug. 12 to Aug. 26, 1933.

The activities of the Hydrographic Office and of the Coast Survey, which are proposed to be merged, are largely similar. It is noted however that the output of the Hydrographic Office is approximately four times that of the Coast Survey; that the extension of the Coast Survey to foreign waters would involve an increase of administrative overhead for the operation of floating equipment whereas the Navy is prepared to accept the survey of both foreign and domestic waters with no increase in personnel or of expense.

Therefore it is suggested economy can be accomplished if the Coast Survey and the Hydrographic Office are merged under the Navy Department but that under the Department of Commerce an increase of cost would result.

A compelling military objection to the proposed transfer is that the Navy cannot delegate the preparation and distribution of secret and confidential charts to any agency not under its own control. In time of war, this might well have fatal consequences.

In 1924, after extensive hearings the Joint Committee on Reorganization of the Executive Departments recommended against any alteration in the status of the Hydrographic Office.

The Naval Observatory's primary purpose is the exact determination of time and other astronomical facts, the knowledge of which is essential to navigation. The presence of Naval Officers in the Observatory has contributed greatly to the study of astronomy and has been of inestimable value to the Navy since mariners make practical application of astronomy in their daily work.

The Observatory is functioning admirably now but it is questionable whether it would do so well under any other jurisdiction. Also any change in administration probably would involve an increase rather than a decrease in expense.

In view of the above, the subcommittee recommends strongly against the removal of the Hydrographic Office and of the Naval Observatory from the Navy Department.
